New Electric Transmission Projects

Dominion Energy is committed to providing safe, reliable, affordable, and increasingly clean electricity. We are in the early planning stages of several projects in your area and invite you to save the date for two upcoming public meetings. Your involvement and input are important in developing these projects.

Northern Virginia is a leading innovation and technology hub experiencing a rapidly increasing demand for energy. We are working with state, county, and community leaders to develop solutions that meet customer energy needs with new electric infrastructure in the northeastern Loudoun/Ashburn area. These investments will enhance the local electric grid and improve reliability for all customers.

We anticipate the need for new 500 kV and 230 kV electric transmission line infrastructure, including new substations. Details, including the initial transmission line routing options, are being developed.

Over the coming months, we will seek feedback to help develop the best possible route for these projects. Several public meetings will be held this year, both virtually and in person, to provide an opportunity for you to learn more, ask questions of our project team and provide input. The first of which are occurring this June.

You will receive further details for both events in the coming weeks.

Dominion Energy is planning several projects in your area, and your input is crucial. You are invited to attend one or both of the open house events to learn about upcoming projects.

June 22, 12 PM to 1 PM – Virtual | June 29, 5 PM to 8 PM – In-person

Log in and location details will be shared soon.
