To support this, Dominion Energy is planning a new 70-mile, 500 kilovolt (kV) transmission line through Louisa, Spotsylvania, Caroline, Stafford, and Fauquier counties. The line will connect the proposed Kraken Substation in Caroline County with the proposed Yeat Substation in Fauquier County.

This investment strengthens the grid, supports Virginia's energy security, and ensures reliable power for your community.

Your input matters. You will have opportunities to share feedback throughout the process, and your perspective will help shape how this project moves forward. Please plan to join us at one of five upcoming meetings.

This map is intended to serve as a representation of the project area and is not intended for detailed engineering purposes.
