Golden-Mars 500-230 kV Electric Transmission Project

At Dominion Energy, we remain committed to providing safe, affordable, and increasingly clean electricity—that's our promise to you. We are preparing to construct a new electric transmission line, generally located northwest of Dulles Airport, that will connect the Golden and Mars Substations.

The Golden to Mars 500-230 kV Electric Transmission Project is designed to address the growing energy needs of Loudoun County and the region. Since our meeting with the community earlier this year, we've been working to refine our routes for this project. Golden to Mars is the final in a series of three reliability projects that Dominion Energy has developed to bring bulk electricity into the area known as Data Center Alley. These reliability projects address the growing energy needs in Loudoun County.

Your input and involvement are important to the development of this project as we consider all the details. We value your input as we work with state and local leaders to route and site new electric infrastructure in and around Ashburn. We encourage you to attend one of the upcoming community meetings on the transmission line routing options. A virtual meeting is planned for Tuesday, January 14, 2025. An in-person meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, January 15, 2025. These meetings are to gather input, provide project details, and answer your questions. A presentation on the project is planned for 6 p.m. at the in-person community meeting on January 15, 2025.

This map is intended to serve as a representation of the project area and is not intended for detailed engineering purposes.
